One of the most precious persons I ever knew. So many good memories from the book study at her house and meeting for service there. Loved swinging on that front porch swing with all my friends. We would swing it so high until it would smack the house and then we'd get in trouble. :) Ginger snaps always make me think of her, because she would always pass them out after the book study. She had an infectious giggle. I used to love when Joy came to visit her and we would play together. I wish we would have kept in touch. Can't wait to see Sister Violet again.
