Tonya, I am so sorry for your loss. It is difficult to lose a parent, but please let the Lord comfort you. Please take comfort in knowing your Dad is at peace now, and longer suffering in pain. He is now an angel watching over you from above. We will keep you all in our prayers.

Jim was cool, fair, just and quick-witted. I thank him for sharing some of his past, the most recent and whatever, whenever or whoever was on his mind. I enjoyed the discussions about his youth, friends, and jobs. I am forever grateful for the trust he had in me, for tolerating the things that would irk the common man and for being our Gladiator these past months. He is in peace now. May your only child be patient as I need to be to catch you later when our time arrives. She and I love you. Enjoy your walks. \r\n\r\nWell, let me see. It is like this: you left\r\n\r\nus too soon, but your impact won't.
